POET'S CORNER

Why don't the Girls propose?

A LEAP YEAR LYRIC.

Why don't the Girls propose, O, say? I wish they would begin! I've donned my Sunday suit each day Since the New Year came in I've trained my new moustache with care, And sent them many a rose, And smiled at every passing fair-But still they don't propose!

I've waited patiently and long These three years past in vain, But now I fear there's something wrong, For Leap Year's come again; And not a single offer yet,

To seothe my many woes; Oh, dear! my heart goes pit-a pat-Why don't the girls propose It's not that I have never tried

My luck at Cupin's game, That I my single lot abide, And still the arrow bounded back To give my heart new throes-'Tis ever my confounded luck!-

Why don't the girls propose? But I have made a desperate vow To say no lady "nay;"
This only hope is left me now,
To shed one lingering ray; The girls alike agree to this,

That I'm the best of beaux-This compliment to me what hiss, If they would but propose? I wish the papers would agree,

Nor let the matter log-The Transcript, Mail, and Times, and Bee And then the CorpetBag;-No lady's heart could then remain As cold as winter snows; And we poor bachelors should gain, For then they world propose!

Tipsy Conclusions.

Out of the tavern I've just stepped to-night; Street! you are caught in a very bad plight; Right hand and left hand you're both out o'place Street, you are DRUNK—'tis a very clear case! Moon-'tis a very queer figure you cut -One eye is staring while the other is shut; Tipsy, I see, and you're greatly to blame— Old as you are, 'tis a horrible shame'.

Then the street lamps! what a scandalous sight None of them soberly standing upright; Rocking and steggering-why, on my word, Each of the lamps is so drunk as a lord?

All is confusion-now isn't it odd? Nothing is sober that I see abroad; Sure it were rash with this crew to remain; Better not go to the tovern again!

Brevities.

WHEN I WAS A BOY. I remember, I remember, The fir trees dark and high; I used to think their slender spires Wers close against the sky. It was a childish ignorance, But now 'tis little joy,
To know I'm farther off from heaven Than when I was a boy.

THE KORSPTH HAT. An emblem on a carriage door Reveals the owner's caste, And motto serves one to explore The inmete's native taste; With plane so bright and soft, Proclaims there's something else that's flat A weak-constructed loft.

I'M OF THE PRESS. I'm of the Press!-I'm of the Press! My lost, embattled types; With them I quell the tyrent herdes, And rear the stars and stripes; I give my hand to all my race. My altar, Freedom's so I say my say, and bend my knee Alone, alone to God.

WOMAN'S LOVE. Like the lustre of the dawn, Or the dew of early mern; Like the firmament on high-Ardent as the changeless dys; Faithful as the polar gem, Feerless as the disdem— Such is Woman's Love!
